The Attorney General
The Department of Justice
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Attorney General,

Some [illegible] of December 14 [illegible] two of my appeals for information under the Freedom of Information Act. One is for all the information on one [illegible] called [illegible]. The other is for the investigation of a [illegible]. In this case, you go to some trouble to make explanation, for which I thank you. It may be helpful to back of me. Note, however, enclosed is a copy of my first (unanswered) letter to you in which I suggested that you not depend upon the same sources for your information as your predecessor.

With respect to Mr. Colby, you say "that the files of this Department contain no information that Colby was interviewed by the FBI concerning the assassination of President Kennedy or concerning Oswald". Colby's recollection is incorrect. This is not consistent with earlier statements. It is certainly inconsistent with what others say and what is now your Department's own records. First let me [illegible] the request to include the period of the original investigation. For [illegible] of your experience and I know it will be clear that interviewed Colby was done for any law-enforcement purposes. Don't let me make this [illegible] explanation to you so that you can assess clearly the forthrightness and completeness of what you have said [illegible] the character of the investigation.

[illegible] Oswald, [illegible] was employed at [illegible] (a [illegible] in applied [illegible] a job (public relations). Colby's office is located in Oswald's [illegible] [illegible] a security [illegible] was a close associate [illegible] Oswald [illegible] Colby [illegible] by the FBI. [illegible] Oswald did [illegible] Colby [illegible] information [illegible] Oswald [illegible] Colby [illegible] Oswald [illegible] Colby [illegible] Oswald [illegible] Colby

Of this you say, "Indeed, one would be hard pressed to imagine a clearer case of a request for data covered by that exemption." Because, hard as you are, your information came once from others, I make this brief explanation on which I will expand, should you so desire:

The incident in question was before the examination (then to be one violated), and the leaflet containing the fingerprint was supplied to the Department after the examination as part of an investigation that the director of the FBI himself, and under oath, said was not for law-enforcement purposes. Indeed, he went far out of his way to say there was no legal authorization for the investigation in this case.

Overall, reports in such leaflets activities and more often than the Warren Commission, also reported, he is shown to have had at least two associates in this, only one was ever identified (and he has told us that of that association there was another, not known to him, also involved). In several occasions, your Department has another potential sensitive file of that particular operation and find it still possible that we not exist in either the files of the Warren Commission or, later, even in the records from which they were established. I can supply you with copies of the reports that are supplied on this point. I can also supply you with the legend that is still stamped around that file in the National Archives, specifying that it above the use helpful would accrue the records to more only one. (So you may better understand the initiation, I also tell you that the Warren Commission's copy, supplied by your Department, did not have such a stamper. This copy is now in the National Archives because of my efforts, and it was unobtrusive.) In addition, the two FBI reports quote the only people in the world in a position to have the original, but the printer that was made and delivered them leaflets to Lansdale. Those reports do not identify the man to whom delivery was made, but the security report gives a description of a person previously unknown to the public. Now, I have also interviewed most people, the only ones involved, aside from the man to whom delivery was made, and from them, independently, I have obtained an identification of the man to whom delivery was made. I have these interviews on tape. Here I quote you of my repeated offers of what my own investigation have included. While the law does not require that a requester explain his interest in information, I do so, in the interest of all. I MAKE the indictment of my interest in disclosure. And I would say, that the Department's interest and not overall is one of these applications that it has made suppressed or to withholding information.

You say you cannot "imagine a clearer case" than to "yourself" by the exemption which reads, "Investigatory files compiled for law enforcement purposes except to the extent available by law to a private party." Especially in the context of the authorization burden imposed upon the Department by the law, to justify its withholding, as your own Department's memorandum says on page 10, citing 5. Supp. 5 ("The burden of proof is placed upon the agency which is the only party able to produce the evidence."). I doubt that that has ever been enforced and I point out that what I have said is not an investigative report but a simple FBI report. Moreover, what I have had over many years may not be sufficient data, under the law, but it did enable me to do it on my own.

I respectfully request that you reconsider your response before a formal appeal. Although it is not required of me, if a time may further authorization you ask, I will provide it. My purposes are to obtain the information to which I believe I am entitled and to obtain compliance with the law. They are not to embarrass the Department or to needlessly clutter the courts. I do hope that you will reconsider and that the exercise of those purposes is not required.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
